As we approach our bicentennial in 2017, the University of Michigan has a fascinating story of discovery to share.

The University was founded in Detroit in 1817 as one of the first public universities in the country. The school moved westward to Ann Arbor in 1837, when Ann Arbor was only 13 years old. When the first classes were taught in 1841, U-M had two professors and seven students.

The University has greatly expanded over the years and now has campuses in Ann Arbor, Flint, and Dearborn, Michigan. Today, the University of Michigan has over 58,000 students and over 10,000 faculty members across all three campuses.

The mission of the University of Michigan is to serve the people of Michigan and the world through preeminence in creating, communicating, preserving and applying knowledge, art, and academic values, and in developing leaders and citizens who will challenge the present and enrich the future.

The University of Michigan
School of Dentistry

Established May 12, 1875, the University of Michigan School of Dentistry was the first such school to become part of a state university, and the second dental school in the world to be located at any university.

By 1885, it was one of the only three dental schools in the United States recognized professionally by European medical councils, others including Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania.

The first graduate degree was awarded by the University of Michigan in 1894.

Sindecuse Museum of Dentistry

The mission of the Sindecuse Museum of Dentistry is to educate its audiences about the history of dentistry through museum exhibition, related programs, research, and preservation of its collections. To achieve its mission, the Sindecuse Museum of Dentistry will:

- Develop and preserve historical museum collections focused on the history of dentistry with particular interest on dental practice and technology in the United States and Michigan dating from the 18th century to today.
- Create and maintain exhibitions reflecting the history of the dental profession, technology and related topics of historical significance in dentistry.
- Serve the University, the dental community, and the public through the sharing of knowledge of the museum’s collection and history of dentistry via public exhibits, programs, research services, and outreach activities.

Inherent in the museum’s mission is a dedication to stimulate an understanding and appreciation of dentistry in a historical context for museum visitors, including the University of Michigan School of Dentistry community, campus community, alumni, and the public.

The State Street Area, adjacent to U of M's Central Campus, offers a great mix of clothing, music and book stores, including Borders Book Store. There are many coffee shops, casual restaurants, and ice cream shops. Points of interest also include Kempf House, Burton Memorial Tower, and the U of M Central Campus. Nickels Arcade, connecting State and Maynard Streets, was one of the first indoor shopping plazas in Michigan and houses a quaint assortment of shops. The State Street Area serves as the "entertainment capital" of Ann Arbor, because most of the big performance venues as well as two movie theaters are scattered within a few blocks.

The Nickels Arcade offers walking-distance shopping from large retailers like Bivouac and Van Boven to smaller boutiques like The Caravan Shop. Built in 1918, the arcade has been an Ann Arbor staple for almost a century.

South University Avenue, located southeast of "The Diag" bisects the U of M's central campus. The wide assortment of interesting shops includes excellent jewelry stores, unique gift stores, the latest and greatest music, and food to satisfy any craving.

A short walk north of downtown is the Kerrytown District, a unique blend of neighborhood and commerce. This historic area offers one-of-a-kind shops, restaurants, markets, the renowned Zingerman's Deli, a concert house, art gallery, children's museum, and a rich, diverse culture. Visit kerrytown.org for a complete listing. The Kerrytown District is also home to the Kerrytown Market and Shops and the Ann Arbor Farmer's Market. At this year-round market, early risers get the best pick of the area's produce, including fresh vegetables and plants, baked goods, wearable art or a fresh bouquet of flowers. The Ann Arbor Artisan Market (held on Sundays) is filled with a variety of crafts, including clothing, furniture, pottery, and more.
